

How We Did It

Finding a first-rate physician during a health crisis is critical, but who are the area's top doctors? Based on the belief that no one knows medicine better than those who practice it, Cincinnati Magazine set out to answer the question by surveying 5,256 local physicians. Our survey went to physicians in eight counties: Hamilton, Warren, Butler, and Clermont in Ohio; Boone, Campbell, and Kenton in Kentucky; and Dearborn in Indiana. Our mailing list was drawn from the current roster of physicians licensed by the Ohio, Kentucky, and Indiana state medical boards. The premise was simple: We asked them to tell us whom they would turn to if "you, a family member, or a friend needed medical attention." The only proviso we gave them was to refrain from nominating themselves. The results: 422 physicians in 42 specialties. Every doctor on this list received at least five votes from their peers. Many received far more, including six who earned more than 40 votes each. (Dr. Janice Rafferty, a colon and rectal surgeon, received a remarkable 115 votes from her colleagues.) We want to emphasize that our list does not, of course, include every caring, knowledgeable, and responsible physician in the Greater Cincinnati area. Finally, some physicians are listed in multiple specialties. To download a PDF version of this list, go to www.cincinnatiimagazine.com.

NOTE: Unless otherwise indicated, all physicians on the list are accepting new patients.
